TIMELY WARNING

President Roosevelt's call for a tightening of the parole system is timely and needed. Along with millions of others, Mr. Roosevelt was deeply shocked at revelations that two men involved in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping had long criminal records but repeatedly had been placed on parole. His insistence that "we should seek to prevent abuses of parole, especially in cases of habitual criminals," will strike a responsive chord with all decent citizens familiar with parole abuses.

Man after man arrested for major crime turns out to be a paroled prisoner with a long police record. Parole under extenuating circumstances doubtless deserves to find place in any civilized judicial system, but the abuses are so many and glaring it is time to re-survey the methods employed.

Practiced and hardened criminals are encouraged to pursue careers of crime by the ease with which they are "sprung" after conviction. Underworld funds—big funds, earmarked for just that purpose—are frequently employed to exert political pressure. The best method of dealing with prisoners applying for parole is to employ the fullest publicity. Put the prisoner on the defensive. Make him show cadés before men why he should be released. The public is entitled to know who desires him to go free. If it is a politician—what is his interest? If it is a highly paid lawyer—where did the money come from to engage his services, and are these services all strictly legal? Skull-duggery and crookedness too often mark this parole business in many states. Star chamber proceedings should not be tolerated a moment longer.

Insuror Sued To Collect On Jury Judgment

MARTINEZ, July 10.—Six children of Alfred W. Wall, killed June 14, 1934, in an El Cerrito automobile collision, today filed suit here against the Employer's Casualty Company asking a verdict of $5,318.50, covering a judgment they secured October 19, 1934, against John W. Heldorn, driver of car involved in a collision with a machine driven by Wall.

The suit claims the casualty company insured Heldorn, that it refused payment and that Heldorn is insolvent and the judgment cannot be satisfied by him. The children, suing through their guardian, Ada Wall, claim the casualty company insured Heldorn owner of an El Cerrito automobile repair shop, but assert that the concern contends it is not liable and that the insurance did not cover the circumstances involved in the case.

Eastern Boys At Local CCC Camp

Twenty-four members of Company 3556 of the CCC arrived at the San Pablo Dam camp yesterday under the leadership of Lieutenant R. F. Kenney, U. S. R. These CCC boys are from eastern states. It was expected that more than 200 would arrive, but due to difficulties experienced by CCC officials in recruiting members, only the small number came.

Doug Fairbanks, Lady Ashley To Go To Europe

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—UP—Douglas Fairbanks, flying to join Lady Sylvia Ashley in a cruise to Europe, took a TWA airplane for New York tonight.

If the weather is good, Fairbanks will radio ahead for a chartered plane for Quebec, where Lady Sylvia will be waiting to board the Empress of Britain with him. He said he would go by train if weather is bad.

Ignoring questions touching on his fair voyaging companion, the debonaire actor said he was going to Europe "on business" and would be gone three months.

Alleged Suicide Try Urged As Divorce Ground

MARTINEZ, July 10.—Mrs. Elden Alves once tried suicide in San Francisco by drinking poison, her husband, John B. Alves, of Richmond, declares in a suit for divorce he filed here today.

Alves also declares his wife remained away from home at nights, associated with other women, nagged and told him she did not love him.

They have two children, whose custody Alves asks the court to determine. They married December 5, 1926, and separated July 4, 1935.

The suit was filed through Attorney Harold Sawallisch.

Industrial Day Will Be Held In Richmond

The advantages of Richmond as an industrial and manufacturing city will be dramatized through Industrial Day, to be held early in October, according to plans made public by P. M. Sanford, president of the Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting of the directors yesterday. Sanford said the plan is still in the formative stage, but that he will name a committee at once to arrange details and execute the plan. The purpose will be to gather leading industrialists and business men in all walks of life at a luncheon in Richmond at which the general industrial picture will be painted by local and outside speakers, and the bay territory will be informed of the situation Richmond occupies as the focal point of Pacific coast industry.

It was announced that Richmond will make a strenuous effort to secure an appropriation for the new post office larger than the one for $100,000 which has been suggested by the Federal Government.

Bridges Charges Union Leaders In Strike Sold Out

NEW YORK, July 10.—UP—A bitter wrangle over the San Francisco general strike of last year—with charges on one hand that union leaders "sold out," and accusations on the other that it was inspired by Communists—all broke up the convention of the I. L. A. today.

President Joseph P. Ryan, up tomorrow for reelection, said the strike had been called by Communist elements in the organization.

Harry Bridges, West Coast leader who directed the strike and is Ryan's chief rival for the presidential post, attempted to reply, but had difficulty in obtaining the floor. Finally gaining permission, Bridges charged certain union leaders with selling out in the strike.

He named Ryan, William Green, president of the A. F. L., and Mike Casey of the San Francisco teamsters' union as being among those more or less responsible.

ROOSEVELT INSULTED AT TAX PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 10.—UP—A witness who started President Roosevelt was removed from the record today by the House ways and means committee in a sniping, snaling hearing on the proposal to levy higher taxes on the rich.

Another witness suggested that the House of Representatives be abolished, but the proposal found no favor with the Congressmen.

VARIETY OF PLANS

A wide variety of plans, including Henry George's single-tax was proposed, but it was not until H. E. Ayles of the Fair Tax League got on the witness stand that tempers began to boil.

He charged that $3,000,000,000 in "taxes" already had been levied on the American people who were forced by "the trusts to pay excessive prices." Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson regarded that, he added.

SCORES ROOSEVELT

"I'm not interested in what Theodore Roosevelt thought," said Representative Allen Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, "Do you know what Franklin Roosevelt thinks about it?"

"I don't think Franklin Roosevelt has any opinion on Monday which he has on Thursday," said, shaking his fist at the committee, "I think the President is morally deficient."

Select Jury To Hear Trial Of Plotters

MODESTO, July 10.—UP—Routine selection of a jury to hear the trial of eight men charged with five counts of felony for an alleged plot to dynamite Standard Oil Company property near Patterson.

Questions asked prospective jurors indicated that the part played by the oil company in the arrest of the men April 21, while they were on duty in possession of dynamite and blackjacks, will be emphasized by the defense.

Ten men were asked if they owned stock in the oil company or in one of its subsidiaries, if they or any of their relatives worked for the company, where they bought their gasoline and whether they knew Glenn M. DeVore, former Fresno county district attorney. DeVore has been employed by the corporation as special prosecutor.

Insurance Plan Is Discussed By S. O. Employees

Formation of a credit bureau for Standard Oil employees and organization of a group health insurance plan was discussed last evening when the Standard Oil Employees Association held its meeting.

It was announced that a special meeting will be held on July 24 at which time the association will take a final vote on the two matters. At that time the vote cast last night on constitutional amendments will be tallied.

Under the credit plan, every employee will be eligible to join. Stock will be purchased and the money will be loaned to workers at a low rate of interest. Profits will be shared.

The group insurance will be open to members of the association only, if the proposal advanced last night is adopted. Talks were heard from a representative of a San Francisco insurance firm on the proposal.

Ben F. Mowday presided over the meeting.

MRS. EARL DAVIS is vacationing at the ranch of friends in Sonoma county.

PASSAGE OF MEASURE IN HOUSE NEAR

WASHINGTON, July 10.—UP—Passage of the New Deal's TVA amendments in the House tomorrow was assured tonight after President Roosevelt had whipped rebellious Democrats into line to secure a series of impressive victories over stubborn opponents of his power program.

Revolutionary party members who last week rebuked Mr. Roosevelt twice on the "death sentence" in the Wheeler-Rayburn Utilities Bill, came meekly back into the fold to eliminate from the TVA amendments all revisions designed to restrict the project.

REJECT AMENDMENTS

An amendment which would have prevented the sale of surplus TVA power below cost after July 1, 1937, lost 98 to 67—the first test of the President's strength on the pending bill. Immediately thereafter a proposal to place TVA strictly under the thumb of the Comptroller General's office was rejected 162 to 120.

The House then voted 237 to 145 to eliminate a provision which would have prohibited the TVA from building power transmission lines parallel to private lines until an attempt had been made to negotiate sale of the latter or to obtain a license through condemnation proceedings.

ADOPT PROPOSAL

A new section striking at the Mellon Aluminum Company and authorizing TVA to pass on all dam construction on the Tennessee River or its tributaries, was adopted without record vote.

Only one change sought by the Administration was rejected. Chairman

STATE WILL REST AFTER TESTIMONY

TACOMA, July 10.—George Hunt Weyerhaeuser, old victim of a $200,000 kidnapping last May, spent this afternoon in Federal courtroom where Janet Thulin Waley, 19, is being tried for his abduction but was prevented from testifying until tomorrow.

The government will conclude its Lindbergh act charges against the girl tomorrow and he husband, Harmon Waley, will be brought from McNeil Island on to testify that he was an active party to the abduction.

CALL 3 WITNESSES

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Owen Hughes said the government had only about three witnesses to call before closing its case.

The brown-haired smiling boy who was held for eight days chained in holes in the ground near Seattle and to a tree near Spirit Lake, Idaho, and kept in a dark closet in Spokane, will be the last and most dramatic witness to point to the guilt of Margaret Waley.

ASK FREEDOM

Chief of Defense Counsel John F. Dore scoffing at the importance of expert testimony today that Mrs. Waley left fingerprints throughout the Spokane hideout and the shack the kidnappers said to have used in Seattle, announced he would move immediately on conclusion of the government case for a directed verdict of acquittal.

The prosecution failed to connect Mrs. Waley with the kidnapping.

DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY FINDS NEW GOLD MINE

RANDSBURG, July 10.—UP—“Death Valley Scotty” tonight finished tinkering with his “air cooled” desert coupe, took another dose of “rattlesnake cure”—applied internally—and announced he would set out for Los Angeles as soon as the cure wore off, to announce his new gold discoveries to the world.

“Death Valley”—whose real name is Walter Scott—left a hospital where he had been recuperating from “rattlesnake bite” contracted en route from his Death Valley mission.

SNAKE RITE
“Rattlesnakes is something fierce on that desert,” the Southwest No. 1 nomad announced, hoisting another sample of “cure” and offering one. “Jest in case you get bit.”

He was perturbed over the worry he caused Dr. Frank G. Nolan, his Los Angeles friend who organized an airplane hunt to search for the desert wanderer, missing two weeks and located by the United Press in this desert mining town.

SCOTTY WAS BIT
“You tell Doc Nolan I’ll be along in three-four days,” he said. “I got to go back to Death Valley to get my stuff. I been tearin’ around ‘n’ hell ‘n’ havin’ more damn fun.”

He explained he had to get out of his ancient, open top coupe in the middle of a desert to fix a “gaskin” which blew out, and “that there damn rattlesnake snuck right up ‘n’ bit me.”

FOUND 150 MINES
“I had lots of snake-bite dope in the car, so I was all right. I made it into Randsburg and laid by in the hospital couple days. I’m all right now—feel like a million.”

“Death Valley” said he had discovered “150 mines—all chub full of gold—right smack dab in the middle Death Valley.”

“I ain’t had time to figger out what they’re wuth—maybe millions.”

He said his trip to Los Angeles was to consult with Dr. Nolan and his Chicago “pardner,” A. M. Johnson, who arrived in Los Angeles today.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on teeth, throat, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

BARGE MEN TO SEEK SUPPORT OF TEAMSTERS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—UP—Striking barge men who have tied up operation of 15 river lines operating on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, today announced they will seek the support of organized teamsters to prevent hauling of river boat cargoes by truck.

Three trucks, loaded with freight which would ordinarily move by river boat, moved under police escort today from a San Francisco warehouse to the San Mateo county line.

Trucks have been used to move cargoes since Friday, river line operators said. Police convoys were not requested until Monday night, however, when a crowd gathered in front of Pier 3.

Floyd J. Larkin, chairman of the committee representing the river lines, said police aid was requested to avert trouble. The same procedure was followed two days. There was no demonstration.

Officials of Teamsters Union No. 85 said support of the barge men's strike by teamsters would have to come from the Sacramento and Stockton locals as the riverboat operators are employing union truck drivers from those cities.

Barge men's union officials assert the trucks are operated by non-union drivers.

The Pacific Steamship Company liner Emma Alexander sailed yesterday afternoon without a shipment of scrap paper consigned to Vancouver. B. C. Pacific coast longshoremen recently voted not to handle goods to or from the British Columbia strike area.

The freighter Point Clear is still tied up at Pier 54. She has aboard a cargo of paper loaded at Vancouver. Pickets are regularly patrolling the pier.

A meeting between representatives of river line operators and of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association with Frank L. Guirena, federal arbitrator, was scheduled for today to begin arbitration of union demands.

Neon Sign Man Near Death In Berkeley Fall

BERKELEY, July 10.—UP—Osborne Brown, 40, owner of a neon sign company, suffered injuries which may cause his death when he slipped while working on a sign in front of a store and his body struck a 20,000 volt high tension line.

As he slipped, Brown's foot caught in an iron step. He lost consciousness from contact with the electric current, but dangled 35 feet above the sidewalk for half an hour before police and firemen could rescue him.

Physicians said shock and electrical burns would probably prove fatal.

TIME TO ANSWER

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Transcontinental and Western Air Inc., today was given 30 days to answer Commerce Department charges of violations in connection with the air crash that killed Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico. Seven different violations were listed on which the total statutory penalty is $3,500.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—Pinkie Tomlin is one of Hollywood's latest get-rich-quickers but like Dizzy Dean, he refuses to admit he over-extended himself.

Since that day not so many months ago when he arrived in town wearing virtually all of his wardrobe, Pinkie has made probably $200,000 or more.

“But that,” and he shrugs his shoulders, “why, shucks, I ain’t done nothin’ yet. Besides I got a mother to support.”

In his laconic Southern drawl, Pinkie tells how he got his start. He drifted into town behind the wheel of an old automobile. In the pocket of his single suit he had his entire cash fortune—$100. His battered suitcase contained three shirts, two pair of socks, an extra pair of shoes and his only hat. But Pinkie wasn't concerned about wardrobe. What he wanted was a job, a chance to sing.

The gangling country boy bearded Jimmie Grier, whose orchestra was playing at a downtown hotel. Pinkie asked for a chance to sing. “Why,” asked Jimmie, “do you want to sing? Besides we got a singer.”

Pinkie kept on talking. “Tell you what,” he said at last. “I’ll pay my own first week’s salary, $50. If I flop, you can let me go.”

It was a sporting proposition and Grier accepted it. Pinkie sang. The result was 12 encores, several movie offers, two radio bids and a proposition from phonograph record concerns.

The song that carried him over the hump was his own composition, “The Object of My Affections.” Since then he has written four more hits, “What’s the Reason,” “The Trouble With Me Is You,” “That’s What You Think,” “Sweet,” and “Say It Again.”

Although they’ve netted him $150,000 in royalties, Pinkie won’t admit any satisfaction.

“Unfortunately,” he says, “they haven’t passed the five million copies mark yet.”

After filling several singing roles in the movies, he’s now bent on becoming a full-fledged actor. It’s in “Smart Girl” and Pinkie sings not a song.

Lumber Strikers In Protest March On Use Of Guards

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10.—UP—While 5,000 marching lumber strikers at Grays Harbor and the Washington State Federation of Labor convention at Port Angeles protested use of National Guardsmen to protect strikebreakers, several hundred Portland area loggers today promised to return to the woods under agreements between employers and the Sawmill & Timber Workers’ Union.

It was the second protest parade staged this week by Grays Harbor strikers and sympathizers. The 5,000 persons, including many women, marched through streets of Aberdeen and Hoquiam. Three hundred soldiers and State Police did not interfere as the column, 12 blocks long and four abreast, kept order at all times.

William Wedel, president of the Portland local of the union, said agreements had been reached and loggers would return to work as soon as a market is created by re-opening of sawmills.

CONGRESSIONAL

The bill which already has passed the House—with Steagall's blessing—is in the form the Administration wants it. It gives full force to Title 2, which provides for government-regulated central banking.

The Senate bill, as it came from the sulphuric hand of Carter Glass, drastically diluted Title 2, giving private bankers partial supervision over central banking.

Roosevelt, with other congressional fights on his hands, now plans to let Henry Steagall take on Glass.

It should be a good bout.

DRAFT ACT

With at least two people, General Hugh Johnson got off to an extremely bad start as administrator of Works Relief in New York City.

His cavalier requisitioning of Alvin Brown, personnel officer of the NRA, without first obtaining approval of NRA Ruler James O'Neill, brought a vigorous protest from the latter. Finally, however, he yielded.

Not so Madame Secretary Perkins. When Johnson attempted to draft her assistant secretary, able Ed McGrady, there were even greater fireworks.

“Just who does he think he is?” remarked the lady.

In the end, Johnson had to fly down from New York to pacify her.

Dress of Silver

WASHINGTON, July 10.—A lot of people are wondering why hard-hitting young Marriner Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, suddenly about-faced and gave public approval to the banking bill after it was hamstringed by Senator Carter Glass.

The bill is his prize pet, and when he first heard about the Senate committee's report, Eccles nearly hit the ceiling.

He rushed to Secretary Morgenthau, boiling over with plans to blast the mutilated measure and Glass with it. He proposed holding a press conference and firing all barrels. But Morgenthau cautioned calmness and advised him to see the President.

Roosevelt shook his head. “That is not the way, Marriner,” he said. “I can’t take on any more fights with congress. I’ve got my hands full. We will have to use other methods.”

Those other methods already have been worked out by the President and his strategists.

Chief factor in this plan is the controversy which has raged for years between the two banking committee chairmen of Congress—Glass of Virginia in the Senate and Steagall of Alabama in the House.

Steagall's banking views are just the antithesis of Glass'. Where the fiery Virginian is conservative and deathly opposed to the central banking proposal, Steagall is a monetary liberal.

STAR'S FATHER DIES

JOPLIN, Mo., July 10.—Dr. J. L. Truex, 73, father of Ernest Truex, stage and film star, died of paralysis at his home here today.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Escaping the sultry, sun-baked stone canyons is still the chief problem which faces city dwellers these summer days and nights, and finding cool places at which to dine and dance is still the best way of solving it.

Scaling the tops of skyscrapers provides the quickest and easiest flight. Express elevators will take you instantly to a joyous welcome at any of a dozen roof gardens around town. One of the most striking places is the Sky Gardens on the thirty-first floor of the Hotel St. Moritz. The terrace faces directly on Central Park, which is spread out at your feet below like some gigantic private lawn. When the breezes blow too hard, you can step inside and dance to the music of Alex Batkin's dinner ensemble or Eric Gorrea's supper orchestra.

My own favorite aerial retreat is the Rainbow Grill, sixty-five stories up in Radio City, around the sun-set hour. This view is one of the most impressive in town, the rates are not too high, and Val Olman's orchestra is one of the few that knows enough to mix classical and semi-classical tunes with its rock and roll rhythms.

STRATA MEDIA—Not quite so high up, and with less impressive views, are a number of other roof gardens that are nevertheless cool and relaxing—and also less exhausting to the pocketbook.

The Casino-in-the-Air, on the roof of the Hotel Montclair, is a spacious and breezy spot, and when you get tired of dancing you can scramble up to the sun-deck, which is outfitted like a ship's deck, and play shuffle-board, quads or ping-pong. The Hotel Alhambra Roof Garden is always cooled by still south breezes, and there's room enough to spread your elbows with-out fear of bumping into an adjacent skyscraper. Here Ennio's Light's orchestra plays, Ames Anderson sings, and a genial spirit prevails. “The Crow's Nest” atop the Hotel Edison, is a favorite spot for Broadway's theatrical fraternity, and round-the-towers can be seen there having cocktails and sandwiches in the moonlight.

SEA-LEVEL—If high altitudes make you dizzy, there still are refreshing oases on the ground at sea-level. Of these, the municipal government has a corner on some of the best spots in town.

The Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park is one of the most charming places to hide out on a warm evening. What was once the old sheep fold is now a broad open terrace, facing the green fields of the park, and with nothing but the branches of adjacent trees to interrupt the view of the sky. Each table is protected from the sun's rays by a gay-colored umbrella, and at night Japanese lanterns cast a soft glow over the scene. An orchestra is there to supply inspiring dance music, and the prices are within reach of the average citizen.

The historic Claremont Inn, on upper Riverside Drive, is another municipal night-spot that should be investigated. High above the Hudson, with the Palisades forming a towering backdrop, it is just about the largest outdoor eating and drinking place in town. The dance floor is a virtual arena, and the patriotically-minded will enjoy the flag-lowering ceremonies every day at sundown.

PHILOSOPHICAL—Those who enjoy educational entertainment with their food will be rewarded by a visit to the Central Park Zoo at Sixty-fifth street, on the Fifth avenue side. The zoo is one of the prides of Manhattan. It is not large, but the selection of animals is excellent, and the architect's care of the place itself a treat. When you grow hungry watching the elephants eat peanuts, you can retire to the cafeteria-restaurant on the terrace above the seal-pool, bring your tray out to one of the open tables, and sit leisurely munching your food while reflecting philosophically upon nature's laws and man's curiosity.

The seals will cavort vigorously in front of you without urging, and that's entertainment better than any warbling crooner could give you in a decade of warm summer evenings.

TWO-TIME LOVE
by Nelly Graf

Virginia Bret, private secretary in a small town bank, is in love with her boss, Bruce Trex, and believes that he is in love with her, but she is disturbed when Celeste Dell, whom Bruce knew in college, comes to visit his sister Polly and assumes a possessive manner toward him. Bruce finally asks Virginia to marry him but, soon afterward, he drives Celeste to Denver to catch a train and fails to return. Virginia is stunned when she learns that they have been married. On top of this, her sister Lavonne loses her job, and her mother, who has a bad heart, suffers a collapse. The next day, Virginia is urgently summoned home from her office. “It's your mother,” she is told.

CHAPTER XVII
A WEEK later, Virginia sat in the room that had been her mother's. A fly buzzed lazily about the window. She went into the kitchen to get the swatter, came back and held it above the droning creature. Then her hand dropped listlessly. She couldn't do it. Couldn't kill a fly. Death was so terrible. So eternal.

She sat down again and looked toward her sister who sat at the desk near dropped on her hands. “Lavonne, what are we going to do?”

There was no answer, but another figure in the room stirred. Janice Nates had never left the two bewildered girls. Marthy had complained out for the first time in her life. Janice had paid no attention to her.

“It would be plain needless,” she had insisted, “to leave those jangle alone. They're like babies. And there is something about Virginia—anything might happen.”

“Humph if she hadn't been running after that rich young Trex—”

But Janice banging the screen door had gone back to the Bret home. And there she had stayed.

NOW she spoke in answer to Virginia.
“I think it would be a wise thing,” she said, amazed at her own temerity. “If you girls would go away for awhile. Some place where you'd have new work, meet new people and—”

Her voice trailed off. She wanted to say, “This town will never be the same to you again. This home will never be the same. And if you stay, you'll grow old and unlovely like me and Marthy.” But she couldn't say those things. She could only think them.

Lavonne jumped up. “Oh, Virginia, if we only could!”

“Go some place else?” Virginia said musingly.

“Some place like Denver,” Lavonne went on. Let's do, Virginia!—I can't stand it here. Not any more.”

“I'd want to go farther than Denver,” Virginia said. “So far that I'd never see anyone from here except—”

“You might go to New York,” Janice suggested coolly. “Once, if it hadn't been for Marthy. I'd—”

“New York!” exclaimed the girls in unison.

A KNOCK on the door ended the conversation. It was Polly Tregg.

“Why come in,” Janice was plainly embarrassed. “You wished to see—”

“Virginia,” she brought her basket of fruit. “Oh there you are. As Virginia came forward, Polly suddenly threw both arms about her and began to cry.

“Like us!” Marthy drew herself up and arms akimbo, surveyed Janice scornfully. “Well Janice Nates, since when is there anything wrong with us? What do you mean?”

“Oh nothing,” Janice replied wearily. “Nothing.”

NOTED PLAY ON DOUBLE BILL AT FOX FRIDAY

“Cardinal Richelieu,” said to be the finest portrait in all the George Arliss gallery of historical personages, comes to the Fox theater tomorrow at the head of a double program. The picture plays with “Ladies Love Danger,” uniting mystery play.

For a number of years Arliss has longed to play the role of France's red-robed genius of politics, either on the stage or in a picture. Hollywood offered him the first opportunity.

The film play, “Cardinal Richelieu,” is based on Bulwer-Lytton's novel, and its famous dramatization the stage play. It deals with the stormy times of Louis XIII of France, when church and state were contending for power, and the prelate Richelieu was a real power behind the throne.

“Ladies Love Danger,” a swift-moving mystery romance, is the other feature on the bill. Mona Barrie and Gilbert Roland, with the aid of Herbert Mundin, Adolphe Ames, Donald Cook and Charlie Albright, work out the details of the story.

ACTIVITIES

PAGEANT PRESENTED

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gray Visited Far-Away-Mine last week and were very enthusiastic about the camp. A pageant was given on Saturday night in which their daughter, Eleanor, had the only speaking part, that of an Indian princess.

The pageant represented the four fundamentals of life, namely: work, play, love and worship. The episode depicting play was given by the Kit Ki Bizzies, of which Betty Raynolds, June Bonacorso, Faye Chinitz and Betty Jean (niece, of Richmond), are members.

This pageant was based on the play "What Men Live By," by Richard Cabot.

A second pageant "The Evolution of the Canoe," was given by the Manzanita unit, to which the following Richmond Scouts belong:

Mary Jo Wharton, Virginia Young,
Violet Williams and Shirley Hooper.
These prizes were given for the benefit of the entire countryside. A nominal charge was made in order to help defray the expense of the new swimming pool.

CAMEES AT CAMP

Mr. and Mrs. Tsar Calfee spent the day at camp with their daughter Betty Jean on July 4th. Betty will remain two more weeks, and Eileen Dice of Troop 4 has gone to join her.

RETURN HOME

The following girls have returned home after a glorious two weeks spent at Far-Away-Mine:
Virginia Young, Mary Jo Wharton,
Betty Raynolds, Violet Williams,
June Bonacorso, Shirley Hooper, Faye Chinitz and Margaret Cop-pinger.

At the last session of Camp
Baelder, Annie Duca of Troop 13 was invested, as a Tenderfoot Scout. The group has been divided into two teams; the Yellows, captained by Genevieve Brougham, and the Greens, with Louise Cram as the leader. These groups will play match games in competitive sports, such as volleyball, ping pong, etc.

There will be an art contest for the making of a symbol for Ba-elder, which will be won by the girl who is present at every session of camp, or who has the largest percentage in attendance.

Mrs. R. L. James, art instructor at Richmond Union High School, is to be at camp on Thursday to discuss and help plan the rules for the contest.

Regular sessions of camp will be held on subsequent Tuesdays and Thursdays during July and August from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

STATE WILL REST AFTER TESTIMONY

napping with sufficient clarity to warrant jury consideration. Dore will argue.

FOUND FINGERPRINTS
Aaron M. Kohn, fingerprint expert of the U. S. Department of Justice laboratories at Washinton, D. C., told the jury Mrs. Waley left her fingerprints on a dozen articles in the Spokane house in which George was imprisoned.

Kohn identified fingerprints on a light globe taken from the at-tice of the Spokane hideout, on a yeast can taken from the house and on other articles, as those of Mrs. Waley, who in her purported confession to Federal agents asserted she had never gone into the attic.

DIDNT WEAR GLOVES
Kohn also identified a finger-print on a door knob of the Spaokane house as that of George.
While Harmon Waley, the defendant's husband, and William Mahan wore gloves when they handled doorknobs and other articles in the hideout, Mrs. Waley apparently took no such precautions.

Her fingerprints, Kohn testified, were found on an empty picket and beans can, a board from the attic, several coat hangers, a sallow can and other articles.

EXAMINES PHOTOS
The jury examined enlarged photographs of the index finger-print of Mrs. Waley and compared them with an enlargement of the fingerprint on the light globe and yeast can.

The defense staff, willing to stipulate a major portion of the government evidence and testimony, including the fact that Mrs. Waley was in the Spokane residence, scoffed at importance of Kohn's identifications.

The fingerprints did not prove her guilty of violating the Landberg act by transporting the lumber train across a State line, defense counsel said.

way for the young Archduke Otto to ascend a restored Austrian throne, the Bundestag (Austrian legislative chamber) today unanianti-Hapsburg laws.

The action cleared a legal path for Otto and his mother, the former Empress Zita, to return to Austria from the exile into which they were forced following the war, and provides for a return of much of the great Hapsburg wealth confiscated by the Austrian republic.

tions by the Citizens Oil Company and independent who "captured" a sub-surface oil stream in pool near Huntington Beach was ordered by a special State Senate committee investigation committee tonight.

"The State is in the dark as to what is supposed to be an oil intrusion near Huntington Beach," Senator Culbert L. Olson, chairman of the committee, charged.

Standard Oil, according to socialists available in state offices, drained approximately 4,000,000 barrels of oil from the pool. Unofficial observers charged that as much as 10,000,000 barrels had been removed by the company.

The committee, pending completion of its investigation, asked the state division of lands to withhold acceptance of a $47,000 payment proffered by Standard Oil of oil admittedly taken from the pool in recent years.

Senator Olson said an independent survey of wells that are shuttled into the state-owned pool, and an audit of production records were needed because of the huge discrepancies in estimated totals of the oil removed.

Agreement with independent producers in the area, calling for payments of royalties averaging 12 1/2 per cent of the amount removed, already have netted the state about $2,000,000.

The estimated 4,000,000 barrels removed by Standard would comprise 47 per cent of the company's production in the Huntington Beach area, state engine is said.

The proffered $475,000 would pay the state royalties to March, 1932.
Senator Olson contended this sum was far too small.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Invitations to mayors throughout the Bay district to attend the formal opening of the Citizen Training Corps for transient youths at Clyde, Contra Costa county, were sent out today by J. B. Strauss, chairman of the citizen committee whose members are cooperating with government officials in launching the program.

The ceremonies, which will be broadcast by radio over a national network, will be participated in by representatives of the state and federal governments. Opening of the Corps' program will mark the initial step in a widespread movement to solve the homeless youth problem by concentrating it in transient boys in government-directed camps, or schools, where they will receive special training in citizenship and vocational work.

Although the plan for caring for the country's transient boys was conceived by Strauss, the entire program was finally made possible by Frank Y. McLaughlin, state works project administrator who agreed to finance the Clyde Corps activities out of federal funds allotted California.

The training corps at Clyde will have at least 225 "citizen cadets" enrolled in its first six-months course, according to McLaughlin.
During their period of enrollment efforts will be made to fit the boys for useful occupations, with special emphasis being placed upon their duties as American citizens.

Overwork Results In General Breaking Down Of Tissues and Nerve Centers

By CLAUD N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

MR. PHILIP S. S. writes plaintively, "I find that my stomach is continually upset, from what cause I do not know." The history of his case reveals that he works from 8:30 to 4:30 in an office and from 5:00 until about 11:00 P.M. at manual labor. He concludes, incidentally, with the "mention" that he works on Saturdays and most Sundays.

Then he appeals to a simple-minded doctor who never works more than seven days a week, and tries to keep his average down to sixteen hours a day, to know how to ease his stomach. He is working during the long working hours.

When Philip states his trouble I am almost inclined to think he is spoiling, but a half hour, to catch a hasty lunch of probably sandwiches and coffee or some sweet, a possible few minutes of sunshine and no rest.

At 5:00 he starts on a laboring job. A half hour for supper or dinner, then to change his clothes and get on the job. Whatever he eats cannot be chewed properly and as a result puts an added burden on the stomach and intestines.

There Is a Limit

He works till eleven, probably gets to bed at twelve and must drop to sleep at once if he is to obtain seven hours sleep before 7:00 A.M., when he must get up and go to it again. He takes very little physical rest and for the stomach or any time for digestion.

The human system is a wonderful machine, and its recuperative powers are almost inexhaustible, but there is a limit to all things. A normal human being can work at a leisurely pace possibly twelve hours a day, providing he takes enough time to eat, does not go to dances and parties, and uses his non-working hours to rest. Rest he must have.

This man is burning the candle at both ends and wonders why the middle is sagging. If his stomach does not rebel against his abuse of rest and his entire muscular and nervous system blow up, it will be a Chinese wonder. I suppose he will break and become a chronic invalid and will think that he has "nervous prostration." It will not be nervous prostration. It will be nature crying out against abuse, and demanding rest. Why he is leading this kind of life is hard to imagine. It is a living that he has to do to make a living, because he isn't living.

He's Just Existing

He is existing, and if he continues at this pace he will not be existing long. No machine can last long without some rest and the human machine will endure just so much abuse and no more. He can keep up this pace for a few weeks or months, or even some years, but nature will eventually demand her toll, and when she does, "Look out!"

There is nothing to be said to Philip S., or any of his kind, except that he is trying to do two men's work, and it can't be done. He is giving all his thought and consideration to his two jobs and none whatever to himself, and where will his jobs get to without him?

Even if he were to come to my office, I should say I could not treat such a contradictory situation. To insist an overworked stomach with medicine is always foolish when no attempt is made to ease the burden that is upon it. Even well-selected food will not digest, unless it has some chance to do it.

When nerve tissue and muscle fiber are broken down faster than they can possibly be built up, trouble doesn't follow; it is already there. This man's entire life and health program must be rearranged, or all the medical skill available could not control the consequences.

We have the whistling teapot to inform us when the water boils. Until a special attachment is devised to inform the housekeeper when the double boiler boils dry, try this: Place a lid in the water container of the double boiler. When more water is needed, the lid will rattle.

Sir Samuel Hoare—Conservative

By TALBOT LAKE

WHEN Great Britain agreed to allow Germany to have a naval rating of 35 per cent there was much wondering about the origin of the order. It came from Sir Samuel Hoare, new British Foreign Secretary, who is listed as an ultra-conservative.

The reason is more understandable now. Sir Samuel has some intimate friends who are Russian emigres, and through talking with them decided to adopt a realistic rather than a sentimental attitude toward the Soviet Bear. Therefore, he considered that a stronger German navy might be a good thing in case the Reds got to moving across Europe in an enthusiasm to spread their doctrines.

Sir Samuel comes by his conservatism naturally enough. He is a partner of an ancient family banking business, which reaches out all over the world. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth the Hoare ancestors, goldsmiths and bullion workers, established their bank in Cheapside at the sign of the Golden Bottle. The golden bottle is still the official emblem of the bank. At present five of the family are in active management, and according to an old custom, one of them sleeps every night on the premises.

The family moved slowly into politics until Sir Richard Hoare became Lord Mayor of London during the time of Charles I. The present Sir Samuel has been an effective and powerful politician, just having finished steering the new India bill through Commons. He has been in Parliament from Chelsea since 1910. He has been Air Minister and Secretary of State for India, continuing always his aggressive attitude for holding to traditional policies. One of his chief interests is aviation, and he has been waging a strong campaign for a master air fleet for England.

Sir Samuel is a silver medalist skater, too, this hobby having started when he was attending Oxford. It is predicted he will be so busy during his term that he will be forced to renounce his turn to sleep in the bank.

Guide to Charm

Keeping Slim Made Easy By Right Sports

By JACQUELINE HUNT

SUMMER places emphasis on youth. Everywhere you see straight young shoulders, frank, gay faces and firm young waistlines. It is the firmness that we so often forget in our striving to be youthful. We dress in girlish clothes, use vivid shades of lipstick and rouge and wear young haircuts to create an illusion of youth, when we could have the real thing by keeping our bodies firm and supple.

Now is the time to check up on your figure. If you have let your facial muscles and your shoulders droop you probably look older than you are. Routine exercises are not exactly inspiring, but summer means open season on many sports that are pleasurable and really beneficial exercises.

Summer means tennis, golf, hiking, mountain climbing, swimming, horseback riding and even bicycling and roller skating. Wherever you live you can probably take advantage of one or more of these sports. If you are fortunate enough to be able to take your choice, then select those that will do most to correct your figure faults.

Swimming, horseback riding and tennis are excellent for the entire body as they bring nearly all of the muscles of the body into play. They are especially good for weak, lazy backs and too large hips and thighs.

Tennis, golf and swimming are all good for developing the muscles of the arms and chest, giving you a more shapely bust and a lithe waistline. Too large hips and thighs reduce where you want them to and become firm and nicely proportioned.

Roller skating and bicycling are especially good forms of exercise for the legs, but they will also make your waistline firmer and harden the muscles of the back.

The nice thing about taking your exercise in this manner is that you do not lose interest after the first week as you are apt to do when you try to follow a systematic exercise routine.

If you must resort to the latter, then be firm about taking them. Try to really enjoy them. Make them rhythmic and fun, some real pep and enthusiasm into them. Going through a set of motions without really using your muscles and enjoying it, is a waste. Exercise taken lying on the floor, the spine touching all the way, are best for firming your waistline, straightening your back and teaching you to carry your shoulders and neck properly.

Do not let the summer pass without some attempts at self improvement. You will get some fun doing it and when fall comes you will find your health better, your body shapely and your appearance more youthful.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Can you tell me how to get rid of wrinkles on my forehead? I am not old, but the wrinkles give the impression of age."

ANSWER: Wrinkles across the forehead are usually caused by frowning and frowning. If this is true in your case you need more will power than anything else to get rid of them. Occasionally close your eyes and try to relax your entire face.

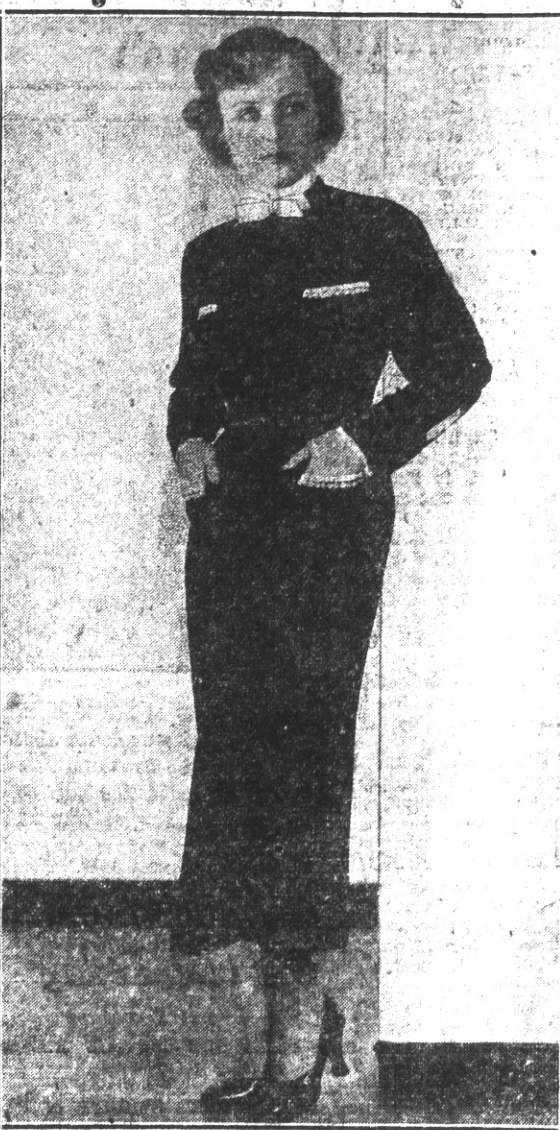

Try to "iron" out the wrinkles by massaging with a rich cream night and morning. Work from the middle of the forehead, out in opposite directions and upward. Press with a light kneading movement. Keep this up for five minutes and then slide an ice cube wrapped in a piece of gauze over the forehead to tone the skin and close the pores.

QUESTION: "My skin is very oily and covered with coarse pores and blackheads. I have tried several kinds of soap and cleansers but they only seem to irritate my skin more since it is thin and sensitive. Please help me."

ANSWER: First see if your diet is to blame for the condition of your skin. Rich food and too many sweets often cause trouble. Try eating less for a while, but eat a bigger portion of raw fruit and vegetables and drink more milk. Exercise enough daily to perspire freely.

You will have to make another attempt to cleanse your skin with soap and water. If you will write me a personal note, I will tell you about some soaps and cleansers that are not apt to irritate your skin. I also have a leaflet on the treatment of oiliness, blackheads and acne that I will be glad to send you.

Shirtwaist Dress Is Favored As Chief Summer Costume

By IRENE VAIL

NEW YORK—The popularity of that much-discussed type of dress the shirtwaist frock—is obvious these days, for it is almost impossible not to meet three or four in every block.

The shirtwaist dress is without doubt the approved uniform of the summer season. It is worn by misses and matrons, by stout as well as slim women, and it is developed in the greatest variety of fabrics.

Navy blue is the favorite, of course, in print as well as in plain fabrics, and crepes, sheers and cottons are all represented. The crepe that introduces a tiny white motif is a great favorite, the dot as well as the little block, tiny leaf and flower pattern.

The shirtwaist dress that features bloused fullness resulting from tucks, pleats and shirring is seen frequently, as well as the one that makes a point of a shoulder yoke, with inverted pleats below.

The neckline too is varied, with the youthful turnover type of collar that fastens at a high line noted very often, vying with the open collared neckline in dresses worn with Ascot scarfs.

These shirtwaist frocks are sometimes worn with jackets, and it was interesting to note that yesterday's heat brought

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "I would appreciate it if you will inform me through Modes and Manners the correct mourning dress for a girl of sixteen. Is white acceptable or black or brown? I am attending a school in which it is compulsory to wear any color midday and a black pleated skirt. Is a blue midday correct? And are any colored sweaters and socks incorrect? Thank you.—P. W."

ANSWER: According to tradition black is the color for mourning. But etiquette as practiced today does not say that one has to wear black. Those who approve of black for mourning wear it. Those who do not, wear whatever colors suit them and keep their grief to themselves, hidden in their hearts. Children as a rule do not wear black; and as a girl of sixteen is pretty much a child she does not have to dress in black. Girls of fifteen or sixteen often wear gray. But you may wear white, black or brown if you do not care to go in for colored middie at this time, way not wear white with your black pleated skirt? If you have a blue midday that you especially like wear it. The same applies to your sweaters and socks.

Summer-time Offers Cook Jollier Tasks

By JUDITH WILSON

FOR the next few months an air of informality makes meals and menu planning a jollier task for the homemaker. Schools are closed, and children home for the summer holidays may call for changes in the usual schedule, but a little organization and certain tasks allotted to each child can make summer a delightful time.

Much of your cooking, of course, will be done via your refrigerator and much more of it over campfires where the meals are pleasure to everyone and a burden to none.

MODERN WOMEN

The Wife Who Disapproves Modern Ways And Hamstrings Her Husband

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

THAT two persons diametrically opposed in taste and temperament should meet and marry has always been a source of wonderment to me. If their ideas are not sympathetic, particularly their ideas of what constitutes companionship and amusement, how in the world did they ever get sufficiently acquainted to find themselves married? I particularly wonder how the girl who writes this letter could have married the man she did apparently without knowing his tastes and inclinations.

"Dear Mrs. Martin: I am twenty-two and married two years. My husband and I have been having quite a few arguments, and I'm finding myself worried about the outcome. It is a most miserable feeling to feel that you are not satisfying the wants and desires of someone you love, and who loves you.

"Maybe I am not broad-minded enough and too old-fashioned. That's where I need advice. My husband believes in smoking and taking a drink to be sociable, and I, on the other hand, differ by a wide margin. We both want him to be happy, but he wants to, though. Every young couple we visit, entertains in the above manner. My husband thinks I should do the same when we entertain them. Should I?"

In Opposite Directions
"I hope that this explains my situation well enough for you to understand my position and advise me on what to do. I feel that we are pulling in opposite directions, and my work in trouble later on. We both want all day and need recreation, but it seems we can't agree on the type, the place, and manner in which to have it.

"I am not talking against these friends who are modern, because I realize that most of them do it. But should we shun them? I like them very much, but disapprove of their smoking, drinking and ladies smoking, and both ladies and gentlemen drinking, even to be sociable. Worried."

You are right to be worried about the future, since two years of marriage has brought you to a realization of your incompatibility, for that is about what it amounts to. You are wrong in your smug, holier-than-thou attitude, and in the assumption that old-fashioned ways are necessarily virtuous and modern ways sinful.

Openminded Attitude
Far be it from me to advise any woman to drink or smoke, but I cannot help from suggesting that you change your attitude toward both. Don't do either if it is distasteful to you but don't show your disapproval of those who do. Right or wrong, it is the prevailing custom among most sophisticated men and women to smoke and drink. There is no reason why you should constitute yourself the judge. Having married a man who apparently sees no harm in these practices, I sincerely believe it is up to you to conform to them. Unless you are a kill-joy, voicing your disapproval or showing your disapproval, it will be perfectly possible for you to mingle with your friends without emulating them.

Since you say you love your husband, trust him and don't impose restrictions. Naturally, you have a right to state by your convictions and not serve liquor to your friends if you are a conscientious objector. Your friends will respect your courage, but they are not likely to outstay their welcome or impose upon hospitality.

The main thing in your mind is to take it, to salvage your marriage and your husband's love. It may take some compromises with your present attitude. You alone know whether it is worth it. If you decide it is not—don't be too hard on your husband.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

Ship Pirate Is Refused By D. A.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—UP—U. S. Attorney Pierson M. Hall tonight tossed a legal bombshell into the investigation of pirates who looted a "gambling ship" off the California coast by refusing to issue a complaint against Walter Miller, arrested in connection with the raid.

Hall said the seagoing casino, "Monte Carlo" had "operated outside the law in the past, and consequently could not expect protection of state or federal laws."

Hall's actions created an unprecedented situation. Federal operatives, seeking to run down the pirates expected to charge them with a penal offense if they were caught.

The complaint against Miller was requested by Department of Justice Agents who claimed he was in possession of the boat in which the pirates raided the gambling ship.

HONORED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, July 10.—Pope Pius today conferred the Supreme Order of Christ on President Lebrun of France. The honor was regarded as significant in view of the discussion in January at the time of the visit of Pierre Laval, then Foreign Minister of France, to Italy of the possibility that France would seek to conclude a concordat with the Vatican.

man John McSwain of the Military Affairs Committee sought to exempt from taxes TVA bonds which may be issued under the act. His proposal brought Republicans and Democrats to their feet demanding that no more tax exempt bonds be issued, in conformance with Mr. Roosevelt's expressed wishes, and the amendment was lost.

VICTORY IN SENATE

The day began with a victory for Mr. Roosevelt in the Senate. At the request of Senator James Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, a motion by Senator William Dieterich, Democrat, Illinois, to force the Senate conference on the Wheeler-Kayburn Bill to concur in House amendments, was withdrawn. A count by party leaders showed a maximum of 40 votes for the Dieterich motion whereas the so-called "death sentence," the chief point of opposition between the two Houses, was adopted by the Senate by a majority of only one vote. With this motion disposed of, Vice President John N. Garner promptly named Senate conferees. They are composed of three Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite who voted for the "death sentence"—Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, Albee Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, Fred H. Brown, Democrat, New Hampshire, Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, and one Republican, Wallace H. White of Maine, who voted against it.

SLAYER DIES ON GALLOWS AT FOLSOM PRISON

FOLSOM PRISON, July 10. UP—Harry Garcia, 31, San Francisco robber who tried to cheat the gallows by attempting suicide last week, was hanged today for the slaying of two fellow convicts.

The trap was sprung at 10:01 a. m. and Garcia was declared dead at 10:11 a. m.

The execution broke an old Folsom tradition in that it was the first hanging to occur except on a Friday.

Garcia was calm as he approached the death chamber.

As he marched past condemned row he shouted "Hall and Tanner good-bye. Take it easy."

George Hall, Siskiyou county, and William E. Tanner, Los Angeles county, are under death sentence.

Garcia mounted the scaffold calmly, looked at the 50 witnesses, and said, "Hello there everybody."

Garcia was originally sentenced to San Quentin but was transferred to Folsom as an incorrigible.

He fatally stabbed two Los Angeles convicts, Juan Garcia and Stanley C. Price while the prisoners were listening to a broadcast of a world series baseball game in October, 1933.

tions, the more of them are killed.

A survey has proved conclusively that traffic accidents in which children figure decrease as playgrounds and summer camps increase. Communities and neighborhoods most lacking in playgrounds most frequently witness the tragedy of a child ground to death under the wheels of a motor truck or injured, often fatally, by a motor car.

Murder! Manslaughter! Yes, but the indictment is not against the careless driver or negligent parent alone. What about the guilt of the community which fails to provide a safe place for its children to play.

Children must play, but they must not play in busy streets.

The wheels of commerce and modes of transportation cannot be halted while young America is at play. Every driver must use reasonable care to prevent accidents but thoughtless and impetuous youth makes even reasonable care unavailing where children are at play in or near the street.

CRIME EDUCATION

Boys have been taken on trips through factories, put through the paces with full fledged fire departments and various other practical experience to broaden their knowledge.

Last week a group of 25 were put through the paces of being "arrested," arraigned, jailed and paroled. They were taken to Washington where J. Edgar Hoover, head of the G-Men, saw to it that they were finger-printed and given gold and blue badges inscribed "Crime Can't Win."

He said the banks have reported $34,289 as loans which developed independent of the campaign, and that field workers have reported $64,000 worth of work which property owners have informed them they intend to have done. He estimated the grand total to date from all sources as being $116,789. There are still 223 estimates not yet reported on by contractors, and 100 estimates not as far released to contractors. The figures, he said, included only home modernization and repairs and not new building, which will be reported later.

PROGRESS REPORTED

Charles Park, manager of the housing project sponsored by the Chamber, and handled through the cooperation of the SERA, reported that excellent progress has been made and that the campaign has still two weeks to run. He said actual figures of contracting jobs already handled by contractors run to a total of $18,500 as a result of the drive, and that he expects the total to exceed $35,000.

RENWICK APPOINTED

Charles S. Renwick, Jr., son of the late C. S. Renwick, who had served for many years as a director, was appointed by unanimous vote to succeed his father as director.

"We feel that in this way we can bring an active young man into the field of community service and at the same time pay a deserved tribute to his late father, whom we loved so much," said President Sanford.

The death of Renwick left the office of first vice president vacant, and this was filled yesterday by the appointment of Clifford T. Douglas, a director and vice president of the American Trust Company.

yourself," roared Representative John McCormack, Democrat, Mass. "I move that that remark be stricken from the record."

HIS DUTY

Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the committee whacked his gavel and ordered Mills to stop talking, but the elderly, stooped little man wanted to get in another word and he did.

"I simply said that because I thought it was my duty," he added, picking up his papers and leaving the witness stand.

Hugo Noren, Pittsburgh, Pa., storekeeper, advocated the single tax and said he favored abolishing all arms of the Federal government except the Senate and the Supreme Court.

"Do you mean you want to get rid of the House of Representatives?" Treadway asked.

"Yes I do," Noren replied. "I am up here trying to make you gentlemen lose your jobs. The House is a useless body."

Frowns creased the forehead of the dozen members of the House at the committee table, but Noren went on talking.

"I have been a Democrat for 40 years, but when the Democrats all turn Socialist and Communist, we might as well abolish the House."

The next uproar was caused by George L. Markan of the Philadelphia Board of Trade who opposed the new tax program because "it would force the man who earns money to support the ne'er-do-wells."

"I am opposed to excessive taxes on such persons as Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller," he added. "They are the men who built up this country."

President Sanford.

Parlor car strength is built into the 1935 LaFayette by the use

New Record

EARL ORTMAN, 23 year old flier, who recently broke all records when he flew from Canada to Mexico in 5 hours and 17 minutes.

New Steel Top On 1936 Model Of LaFayette

Production of the all-steel, seamless top bodies used on the 1935 LaFayette, the Nash-built low-price unit, called for a complete change in existing methods of manufacture including the design and construction of entirely new machinery.

These facts were disclosed here by Homes & Day, local agents, who are highly enthusiastic over the new model, following the arrival of an early shipment of new LaFayettes from the Nash plant at Racine, Wisconsin, this week.

Nor is comfort overlooked in Nash's effort to make the LaFayette as safe as modern scientific skill will enable them to build a car. Top, floor and inside surfaces of the steel bodies are insulated with a composite material that shuts out sound as well as extremes of heat and cold. The additional insulation of a one-inch layer of matted fibre lines the top.

Parlor car strength is built into the 1935 LaFayette by the use of box-type door construction and the body to the chassis. An inner sheet of heavy gauge metal is welded to the door itself to make each door a sturdy steel box.

With box-type sills for body mountings, the body is made fast to the frame on two surfaces, rather than being fastened onto one side of the frame.

APPEALS TO LEAGUE

GENEVA, July 10.—UP—Gaston Jeze, Abyssinian legal representative, today appealed to the League of Nations Council to meet immediately and intervene again in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

Jeze acted on instructions from Addis Ababa shortly after his arrival from Scheveningen, Holland, where he participated in the futile and now deadlocked deliberations of the League's Commission of Conciliation.

SPECIAL MEET CALLED

Italians here said Italy would accept a special session of the council on July 25 if Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister, as president called a meeting in accordance with the Council's June 25 resolution.

The resolution appointed the Commission of Conciliation and provided for another council session on July 25 in event the commission failed to agree. The commission terminated its sessions in complete disagreement at Scheveningen yesterday.

OUTLINES EVENTS

Before appealing for another council session, Jeze presented the League secretariat with a memorandum outlining events leading to collapse of the Scheveningen conciliation efforts. He said Abyssinia's position should be placed on record.

A League spokesman said that Italians had admitted more presentation of Jeze's memorandum compelled Litvinoff to consult council members about calling a special session for July 25 in accordance with the terms of the June 25 resolution.

Abyssinia reportedly seeks a council session before July 25, side of John Timos, 36, and when officers found only one gun it sufficed to jail him. Fingerprinted, Timos was found to be wanted in Fresno for grand theft and bail
